2.2 BackupFriends

The goal of BackupFriends is to share each others resources with each other. Be it backups or providing a compute and storage to your friends. Not everyone will have the money, time or interest in hosting their own server at home and nor should we all. However, they might be really interested in moving away from Big Tech and would love to use open source alternative apps. In this section we describe how you can share your resources responsibly with your friends and family s.t we make the barrier to entry as simple as possible.
